

VULNERABILITY ABUSE

You catch a bad infection and ask a native-speaking friend to call for you a public health center. When specifying your HIV status (which implies an urgent treatment), the secretariat refuses to give you an appointment for so-called "sanitary reasons". After insisting, they accept but only in exchange of informal high payment (for an officially free service).

It's an emergency: you go but lose all your savings; use a HELP MONEY card and get stuck 1 round or get stuck 2 rounds.

WORK-STUDIES INCOMPATIBILITY

Sex work is physically hard; you'd like to work in another field. However, you need to learn the language of your new country first. You find a language course for migrants where you can register for free. But the lessons are taking place in the morning; after a month of intense rhythm, you start losing clients because you need to sleep.

Despite your strong willingness, you need money and have to drop classes; you're stuck for the next round.

ADMINISTRATIVE DISCRIMINATION

You need to have an official working experience to ask citizenship. You go to a cleaning agency and offer your services. You are accepted after an interview. You give your papers to establish a contract but the secretariat calls you back: your official papers are not fitting your gender identity.

The agency accuses you of falsification and refuses to hire you. Go back 1 square.

EVICTON

You rent informally a small room. This your only private and safe place, therefore you don't use it for work. However, your landlord, driving by in the neighbourhood looking for a sexworker to hire, recognises you. Afraid of being accused of procurement (exploitation of sex workers), he decides to evict you the very same night.

You can sleep at a colleague's place but only for a few days. Go back 2 squares.

DOMESTIC EXPLOITATION

You are coming from a very wealthy family with a big house where you had your own room. However, you are now out of money and you are now a housemaid in such a house, where you have a very tiny room.

You have no privacy, you cannot leave the house and your room is only provided in exchange of overwork. Go back 2 squares.

ABORTION DENIAL

Your pregnancy continues but despite your desire to be a mother, you decide that your very poor living conditions don't allow you to raise a child properly. You unwillingly decide to undergo an abortion. But the doctor you manage to consult refuses to help you: they need more documents and the legal period of abortion is about to end.

You eventually have to prepare yourself to welcome a baby despite your precarity. Go back 2 squares.

UNPAID LABOUR

The family you work in as a housemaid does not provide you a decent work contract. In exchange of a tiny room, you're in charge of all the domestic work such as cleaning, cooking, or taking care of the children.

You're not provided any wage and it is for now too difficult for you to leave because you need a room. Go back 2 squares.

WORK-STUDIES INCOMPATIBILITY

You decide to go back to your education to complete your bachelor and to find a job in your area of interest. You apply to different universities but you are not accepted because of the language barrier.

One allows you to register; however, your working conditions don't give you time to study. Go back 1 square.

POOR HOUSING CONDITIONS

The only house you can afford is an old shed near the field you are working in. Unfortunately it does not have energy or a kitchen, so you have to do a fire to cook your food.

You are struggling with asthma. Go back 1 square.

NO PROFESSIONAL RECOGNITION

Working at the strawberry field is physically exhausting. You're finally getting familiar to your new language and decide to ask for a work permit to work again as a doctor. However, you get informed that your new country doesn't recognize your medical education.

You are denied a work permit in your own field and have to keep working as a fruit picker. You're stuck for the next round.

EMERGENCY CARE DENIAL

While working as a fruit picker in a strawberry field, you get seriously injured by a machine. Despite the depth of your wounds and the risks for your health, your boss refuses to drive you to the hospital because you are an illegal worker.

You are injured and cannot leave work to get basic emergency care. Go back 3 squares.

CHILD TRAUMA

Your son Malik can't speak the language of your new place; he must attend a 3-to-6-months preparation class before taking part in regular school. But Malik has been affected by the migration journey. He feels homesick and stays reserved. This impacts seriously his learning process.

Your work doesn't give you time to help him out; Malik's difficulties and social anxiety grow. Go back 2 squares.

SOCIAL ISOLATION

Back in Movoto, you had completed elementary school and thus learned basic life skills like reading, writing and carpentry. But here, you understand the language with great difficulty. Fortunately, the city dwellers are quite friendly and you manage to communicate effectively with simple hand gestures.

Other than the inescapable cultural and social barriers, life on the streets has made it unable for you to attend and complete high school. You are isolated. Go back 1 square.

SHELTER DISMANTLING

You have been squatting in a shanty part of the town with minimal infrastructure and impoverished conditions for the past few weeks. Food is scarce but a religious charitable organization provides you everyday basic meals. However, the prevailing fascist government has set up a ruthless organization to crack down on illegal immigrants, and has dismantled the shelter you had.

You are on the streets again with no means of survival. Go back 2 squares.

FEAR OF QUESTIONS

Whilst sleeping, you get attacked by a heroin-addicted vagabond with a knife who mistakes you for someone else. You suffer from lacerations in your left shoulder and upper back. You can't go to a clinic or hospital because of your illegal status and potential medical fees, but also because you're afraid of questions about your missing organs.

A friend of yours gives you basic first aid. Move forward 1 square. However, you need time to recover; you're stuck for the next 2 rounds.

GANG TRAP

You've been apprehended by a street gang who quickly endorses you into its unlawful midst. You learn the art of craftiness and thievery and must abide by the gang rules in order to survive. Whatever you manage to steal from tourists, you have to return to the leader of the clique. Since you're still a new member, you get just enough food and water for the day.

You feel trapped in this lifestyle. If you have a HELP card, you are safe for now. If not, get stuck 2 rounds.

JAIL

The police retains you for the night because you could not show proper documents. Stay there 1 round then go back to the obstacle spot.

JAIL

The police retains you for the night because you could not show proper documents. Stay there 1 round then go back to the obstacle spot.

JAIL

The police retains you for the night because you could not show proper documents. Stay there 1 round then go back to the obstacle spot.

DEPORTATION

You have been declared illegal and are sent back to your country. Go back to your starting point.

If you have an ACTIVIST or NGO card and a LAWYER card, congratulations: you are safe for this time.

JAIL

The police retains you for the night because you could not show proper documents. Stay there 1 round then go back to the obstacle spot.

DETENTION CENTER

The border police brings you to a detention center to stop your journey. Stay there 2 rounds, then go back to the obstacle spot.

DETENTION CENTER

The border police brings you to a detention center to stop your journey. Stay there 2 rounds, then go back to the obstacle spot.

DETENTION CENTER

The border police brings you to a detention center to stop your journey. Stay there 2 rounds, then go back to the obstacle spot.

DETENTION CENTER

The border police brings you to a detention center to stop your journey. Stay there 2 rounds, then go back to the obstacle spot.

DEPORTATION

You have been declared illegal and are sent back to your country. Go back to your starting point.

If you have an ACTIVIST or NGO card and a LAWYER card, congratulations: you are safe for this time.

DEPORTATION

You have been declared illegal and are sent back to your country. Go back to your starting point.

If you have an ACTIVIST or NGO card and a LAWYER card, congratulations: you are safe for this time.

DEPORTATION

You have been declared illegal and are sent back to your country. Go back to your starting point.

If you have an ACTIVIST or NGO card and a LAWYER card, congratulations: you are safe for this time.

LOLA

JAMIN

ELIJAH

SALMA